

The Promise of New York Comes to Rensselaer!

This do-it-yourself film about do-it-yourself politics was written, directed, produced, edited and shot by 2001 RPI grad Raul Barcelona!

FREE!

Saturday, February 14th
4:00 p.m.
Biotech Auditorium

FREE!

A blogger turned stand-up comic, an obsessive political gadfly, and a high school math teacher compete against each other and arch rival and billionaire incumbent Michael Bloomberg for the post of New York City mayor. As these ordinary citizens take politics into their own hands, The Promise of New York explores the meaning of democracy and the identity of a city with hilarious irreverence and thought-provoking sensitivity.

Raul Barcelona (nee Alvarez) will answer questions after the showing.

Light refreshments will be served.

Co-sponsored by the Friends of the Folsom Library, the Community Advocates, and WRPI.